Now With F.M.L.

The Governor was at the State Fair Music Hall in Dallas the other day guiding a delegation from the Republic of China. He stood by the downstairs fountain while the Chinese gentlemen went up the stairs and out a side exit.

In fact, Martin went up to Dolph Briscoe and introduced himself. He came back to Leslie and me and said so before we knew where the Governor was standing.

Then the Governor, Janie Briscoe, and the Chinese delegation were in limousines and gone.

NOW-NOW-NOW

As this meets presstime, we still don't know where the Governor stands on the proposed Texas Constitution. He was to say something about all or some of its eight parts a few weeks ago, but it's a few weeks until the November 4 election and he still says nothing.

We understand the Governor is elected to lead. I read another columnist, Lynn Ashby of the Houston Post, who is also under that misconception.

He apparently recalls the Governor's non-leadership in the 1972 Democratic Convention, not because of any spite, but because the Governor's non-leadership then beckons the foreboding comparison.

Ashby wrote the Governor a friendly letter in the October 10 edition, citing numerous reasons why people would like to know, if not belatedly, what the Governor thinks.

So far, the lieutenant-governor, the attorney-general, the former speaker of the house are out in front for it. Comptroller Bob Bullock says it will cost too much, and other lesser political lights oppose it, basically because it means change and basically for the better. In fact, Bill Hobby and John Hill have put money in a campaign for its passage.

Writes Ashby:

"OK, so they are all out telling us their thoughts, fer and agin. They are speaking, debating, answering questions, and parrying thrusts, making more enemies than friends, but what the heck, it's time to stand up and be counted, one way or another.

"But I have noticed over the past years, months, and weeks that there has been a deafening silence from one particular section, one noted person, one elected leader.

"You.

"As best I can determine, you have not yet said one single word to

Rabid Skunks Bring Warning For Pet Safety

Eight rabid skunks reported by veterinarians in Milam County from February through August brings a warning from the County Health Department for dog and cat owners to have their animals vaccinated for rabies.

County health inspector Rod Holcombe says these skunks are the only ones reported, and he is certain many other cases exist of rabid wildlife biting dogs or other pets. Holcombe pointed to figures by the Texas State Department of Health which show that Texas is in the midst of a serious outbreak of animal bites.

Two of the skunks were reported killed by dogs, some of which had not been vaccinated. One of the skunks was found biting a chained dog and one found chasing dogs and people. Three of the skunks were found in the city.

Holcombe said any dog bitten by a rabid animal should be destroyed to prevent the disease spreading to humans. He said that one person in Rockdale had received the series of shots in treatment from a bite this year.

The state health department report said that of more than 8,400 dogs involved in biting episodes last year, just over one third were reported as vaccinated against rabies. Less than 10 percent of 1,204 cats involved in biting incidents were known to have been vaccinated against rabies.

Rotary Speaker Raps New Charter

A former county judge told Cameron Rotarians Wednesday that he is opposed to all eight propositions of a new constitution to be offered voters on a November 4 ballot.

Kenneth Douglas, former county judge and now executive director of the Texas Association of Counties, was guest speaker and was introduced by County Judge O. B. Harden.

Douglas spoke briefly on several of the propositions, including the judiciary provision, education provision and finance provision.

He said he is most concerned with the provision for holding annual sessions of the legislature, and added that with special sessions that could be called to take care of governor's vetoes, the Texas Legislature could wind up being in session almost as long as its national counterpart.

Douglas estimated that maybe one person in 50 read the proposed constitution that was mailed out recently, and of that 50 only 1 in 50 understood it. He also predicted a "real light vote" in November.

He stated that some lawyers have said that in the proposed constitution passes justices of the court of criminal appeals would become justices of the Texas Supreme Court, thereby reducing crime. "I don't see how this was arrived at," Douglas said. Recent research shows that both conservatives and liberals feel this will go a very little way to reduce crime, he added.

Douglas said he had "no quarrel" with Proposition 5, which would provide equal and uniform taxation, with one value set on each parcel of land per county and one county assessing unit, but the state comptroller running the assessor's office could wind up with one ad valorem tax value. He said changes are needed in the ad valorem tax.

In answer to a question, Douglas said a short document would no doubt be easier to read by students and laymen, but the present constitution sets out more in detail what it is saying. A shorter document would send the reader to the books of statutes to see what the legislature passed.

Another question concerned taxes on agricultural land. Douglas said he is "not sure this will be as it is intended to be" and tax relief for the agricultural producer would depend on the method of application of the provision.

Council Adopts New Tax

ROCKDALE

Rockdale city councilmen have passed a resolution adopting a 5 percent hotel-motel occupancy tax for the city. The option was offered to cities and towns by the 64th Legislature which approved the occupancy tax on a local option basis. City Mgr. Earnie Moore had earlier estimated such a tax would bring the city some $10,000 a year, chiefly from out-of-town residents.

Smoke Causes Traffic Snarl

SOMERVILLE

What started out as a routine grass fire along the Santa Fe Railroad tracks between Somerivlle and Lyons last Friday afternoon turned into a major traffic snarl that saw a large number of acres of grassland burned and the apparent cause of at least three wrecks involving at least ten different vehicles and resulting in at least five persons being injured.

GEORGETOWN

Peanuts were scattered along the northbound land of I-35 between Round Rock and Georgetown Saturday when a truck loaded with the goobers spilled part of its cargo. Motorists lined the highway during the early afternoon gathering in the windfall. DPS cources said they had no information about how the spill occurred.

Two-truck Collision Fatal

Judgement Given In Death At R'bud Hospital

WACO

U. S. District Judge Jack Roberts Wednesday signed a compromise agreement for $115,000 as the result of a death at the Halbert Clinic and Hospital in Rosebud.

Mrs. Helen Sterling, 16, died after giving birth to a son on January 14, 1971. Her husband, Lee A. Sterling, also suing for the son, contended that the hospital was negligent and that a drug, Levoprome, helped cause the death.

Defendants were American Cyanamid Company, Lederle Laboratories, Dr. John Vardiman, Dr. H. B. Halbert, and Halbert Clinic and Hospital.

The suit asked for $1 million in damages. In the agreed judgement, Sterling will receive $41,000 and his son, Lee Sterling Jr., will receive $28,000 when he is 28 years old. John Holloway, a Houston attorney, will receive $46,000.

The agreement stated American Cyanamid Company and the Ciba-Geigy Corp. will each provide $7,500. The remaining $100,000 will be paid from "others."

More Surveys Due In County For Fire Ants

More surveys on the imported ant infestation in Milam County will be run this winter, according to Couny Agent Bill McCutchen, who says ant mound closest to Cameron is at the city limits.

McCutchen was visited Thursday by Charles Lovett of Waco and Willy Williamson of Bryan, both with the United States Department of Agriculture.

The county has not yet been put under quarantine, and McCutchen believes this will not be done until spring, if then.

Landowners who find the ant mounds on their property should contact the county agent for information about applying a recommended pesticide.

The mounds in hard land can be up to knee-high after a number of years, and are hard and look spongy. These hard mounds can break farm machinery. In softer sandy land the mounds may be built up against a fence post or against a tree, entomologists with the USDA report, and are also built out in the open spaces.

The imported fire ant is a protein either, and can present a danger to animals such as newborn calves. They also eat seedlings in the ground.

Lost Hunters Declared Safe By Searchers

Two lost coon hunters were declared safe and sound after search parties from Milam and Burleson counties were called Thursday to help find them.

The men were Tim Malloy, 81, and Charlie Lopez, 19, both of Rockdale.

The men were coon hunting near the Milam-Burleson county line south of Rockdale Wednesday night and were reported lost when they did not return home.

Cameron volunteer firemen were called Thursday afternoon to aid citizens of Cameron and Rockdale and law enforcement officers from Burleson County in looking for the men.

Lopez, who became separated from Malloy, found the road and hitched a ride back to town. Maloy walked up on the search party Thursday arternoon as he was looking for the road.

Reception Planned

A citizen group from Falls, Milam, and Williamson counties announces they are organizing a November appreciation reception for Rep. Dan Kubiak of Rockdale.

To Self-Discovery...

First, Pasternak, who acquiesed and died in Mother Russia.

Second, Solzhenitsyn, who accepted and suffered exile.

And now, Andrei Sakharov, the third Russian in 17 years to receive a Nobel, this the Nobel Peace Prize which is worth $140,000 and likely exile for the physicist turned Russian human rights leader.

Boris Pasternak in 1958 and A. Solzhenitsyn in 1970 received Nobel Prizes in literature. Pasternak was pressured by Politboro politicians to refuse. Solzhenitsyn went to Oslo to accept and ended up in Swiss exile.

Out of an estimated 50 candidates, Sakharov's work in opposition to political confinement of dissidents like himself was singularly honored.

The Russian physicist is credited with major contributions in development of the Russian hydrogen bomb, credit he passes around to co-workers in the scientific community.

We hazard a guess that the implied disuse of hydrogen energy has motivated many men like Sakharov to put their lives to more positive applications of courage and insight. The Nobel Peace Prize is 180 degrees opposite the intent of hydrogen bombs.

For that matter, so is the Nobel namesake. It was the Scandanavian Nobel whose invention of dynamite founded the base and raison d'etre for world peace prizes and literature prizes.

Human rights in the Sakharov rationale is for political downtrodden, which in Russia means the best minds, the most independent thinkers to mount the courage to dissent.

The Nobel Committee, which in this case was the Norwegian Congress, is doing Russia considerable favor by compelling Communist dogmatists to look at what is happening to the best they have.

It is little wonder that responsible Soviet analysts see the seeds of internal Russia rebellion by the mid-80s.

If "No Man Is An Island", as the song says, neither is a continent nor any part of the trans-Russia-Siberia immensity.

A man like Sakharov believes this. He is in the tradition of an Einstein, a Sweitzer: historic discovery or performance leading to self-discovery.

Texas voters about whether you are for or against any sections or all of the proposed constitution, and why. Oh, I have been looking. And listening. And watching. And waiting. But so far: Zip. Nothing.

Closing, Ashby says, kindly: "So if you would just stand up and be counted. State your case. We'll listen, and consider. It's getting late, Governor, and I really think you can trust us with your innermost feelings on the matter. We won't tell, honest. Just a hint. Please.

Yr Ob't Srvt,
Lynn

NOW-NOW-NOW

We are led to conclude, Lynn, the Governor likes things the way they are. He'll rationalize your column came at the behest of Lt-Gov Hobby, who happens to own much of your paper.

But he'll have to rationalize support for all the constitution proposal by a man like Leon Jaworski, who's been to more intellectual and legal wars than Uvalde has people or the Governor has cattle.

We didn't know Hobby and Hill were putting up money for the proposal's passage. Imagine, public figures, though wealthy ones, spending money on an issue while the Governor won't speak to the question.

Is this not the first constitutional proposal to be voted on in 100 years?

Yes!

Is this not an example of non-leadership?

Yes!

We think Martin was luckier than the rest of the Texas constituency when he found Governor Briscoe standing for that handshake.

Inca Ruler Formed Unique Universal State

Law and order, womb-to-tomb care, and make-work projects helped forge one of the most powerful empires in the New World.

By the time Columbus set sail the mighty Inca Emperor Pachacuti and his son Tupa Inca had created an unprecedented universal state -- without benefit of money, iron, the written word, or the wheel.

Yet the Incas impressed their rule, their law, their religion, and even their highland tongue, Quechua, on almost a hundred nations whose people's lives they regulated to the last detail.

Chile to Columbia

"They called their empire Tahuantinsuyu, the Four Quarters of the World. At its peak it stretched 2,600 miles from central Chile into southern Colombia," pointed out Loren McIntyre in the National Geographic Society's new book, "The Incredible Incas and Their Timeless Land."

The march to empire began about 1438 when a young price led Inca slingmen to victory over a powerful force of Chanca warriors attacking the town of Cuzco in present-day Peru.

He became Pachacuit, first emperor, and during the next 25 years expanded the Inca domain outward from Cuzco. Eminent historians have proclaimed Pachacuti the greatest of American Indians.

Pachacuti could call on vast reserves of manpower to keep his growing empire under control. Accountatns determined how many could be spared from agriculture to take a turn at public works, mining, or military service.

Forced labor kept subjects out of mischief, but they had ample time for festivities and ritual drinking. Commoners enjoyed a large number of holidays. But they could not enjoy ordinary idleness; the Incas invented work to keep them busy. Strict la enforcement, accompanied by harsh punishments and a lack of want, make crime rare.

Lived in Stages

Though allowing some local autonomy and worship, Pachacuti attempted to control every aspect of the behavior of his subjects.

Although honored more in songs and poems than any other Indian king before or after, Pachacuti died quite humbly. As he lay on his death bed about 1471, the creator of the Inca empire recited in a low voice: "Like a lily in the garden I was born, and like a lily I grew up. Years passed, I grew old. I withered, and died."

DYNAMIC LEADER, cunning general, bold administrator, the Emperor Pachacuti—in a painting modeled after an Andean highland Indian of today—began the Inca Empire which once stretched 2,500 miles along the western flank of South America and included six million or more subjects.

China's Oil May Rival Arabia's

By Peter Griffiths

PEKING

Reuter--China is busy exploiting offshore oil deposits, provoking speculation that within a dozen years it may rival Saudi Arabia among the world's great oil-exporting countries.

This leads to further guessing--about what political use Peking will make of its future status as a major oil producer and how this will affect its world-power struggle with Moscow.

With an eye on offshore resources, former British Prime Minister Edward Heath lightheartedly suggested during a recent Peking visit that China and Britain may one day bargain side by side as members of OPEC--the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

Senior Vice-Premier Teng Hsiao-Ping's response was unrecorded.

Britain, like China, is moving to develop offshore deposits--but China is in a far bigger league because it was enormous onshore resources as well.

Whether Peking will join the OPEC oil cartle, how its marketing will affect world prices and how it will resolve maritime oilfield disputes are among other questions raised by China's new prominence as an oil producer.

Its influence on oil-thirsty markets is already having a political effect.

In 1973 Tokyo took one million tons of Chinese oil. This year, according to Japanese sources, supplies to Japanese industry are predicted to soar by nearly 800 percent to 7.8 million tons.

China, with total production this year estimated in a recent U. S. Congressional report at between 78 and 80 million tons, is happy to continue the trend. It wants to woo Tokyo away from dependence on Soviet oil and reduce Peking's balance of payments deficit.

By 1980 China could be well into the black, marking a dramatic advance.

About 10 percent of China's output is estimated to be destined for export, and cheap Chinese oil is likely to be an important factor in Peking's relations with the third world.

China last year sent 120,000 tons of diesel fuel to Thailand, which has been tightening its diplomatic links with Peking. Oil has also helped to increase Peking's influence in North Korea.

The scramble for oil raises problems over seabed rights. Washington this year intervened to prevent U. S. companies from drilling for oil under concessions granted by Taiwan and South Korea in waters claimed by Peking, and there have been other instances of government pressure on the oil companies.

Taching,. China's big onshoring field, now accounts for more than 40 percent of China's total oil output.

But the Taching deposits are reported to be exceeded by the reserves in the Yellow Sea and the Gulf of Pohai.

Soviet-Israeli Meeting Discusses Middle East

By John Chadwick

TEL AVIV

Reuter--A meeting between the Soviet and Israeli foreign ministers has touched off speculation here that the Soviet Union may be trying for a political comeback in the Middle East by re-opening diplomatic relations with Israel.

In recent years, Moscow has found it difficult to play a mediating role in the area because of its lack of relations with the Jewish state, broken off by the Soviet Union and its chief allies at the time of the June 1967 Arab-Israeli war.

A terse communique issued after the meeting in New York between Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko and his Israeli opposite number, Yigal Allon, said simply that they discussed "the middle east in all its aspects."

But according to informed sources here, the two men did discuss the possibility of resuming diplomatic relations. Since 1967, only Romania of the east European states has maintained links with Israel.

The meeting was reported to have been set up at Israel's request after it received word from U. S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger that the Russians were agreeable.

The Israeli view is that since Moscow broke off relations, Moscow should propose their renewal.

The last meeting involving high-ranking ministers of the two sides was between Gromyko and former Foreign Minister Abba Edan two years ago at Geneva, during the Middle East peace conference co-chaired by the Soviet Union and the United States.

There is no firm indication so far that Moscow intends to propose renewing links with Israel in the near future--but a slight thaw does seem to be in progress.

Since the 1973 meeting Soviet leaders have on several occasions--even during a Moscow visit by Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) leader Yasser Arafat--firmly restated their commitment to Israel's survival.

Gromyko himself has referred several times to the Soviet Union's key role in the formation of the Jewish state in 1948.

Earlier this year two Soviet emissaries visited Isreal and talked with Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin and Mr. Allon. Israel's ambassador to Washington, Simcha Dinitz, is realiably reported to have had several meetings with Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin during the past year.

Seven heads of Israel universities who attended a conference in Moscow in August reported on their return that they got a warm reception from the Russians.

Ammon Kapelya, a member of the five-man delegation of leftwing Isrealis who visited Moscow recently at the invitation of the Soviet Peace Committee, said he gained the impression from talks with his hosts that the Soviet Union would welcome the beginning of moves to renew relations.

An Israeli wrestling team competing in a championship at Minsk, however, found that official policies remain unchanged at the practical level. When the team raised an Isreali flag suring a picnic arranged by local Jews, a squad of 20 policemen arrived and tried to take it down, a brawl followed.

Some things have a very special value like the things electricity does for you.

Not until you stop and think about it, do you realize all the things electricity does for you.

Electricity provides lighting and refrigeration. It makes everyday tasks around your home simpler, quicker, easier. It keeps you cool in the summer and warm in the winter. It makes possible all sorts of personal conveniences.

Think about the many things electricity does for you and its cost. You'll find it's still one of today's very special values.

AAA Reveals Facts About Miles -Per-Gallon Claims

HOUSTON

When it comes to claims for miles - per - gallon achievements, what you see may not be what you'll get.

According to the American Automobile Association, (AAA), drivers should not expect their new vehicles to obtain the same miles - per - gallon ratings advertised by automakers or displayed on fuel - economy labels found on showroom cars.

The fuel - economy stickers refer to figures achieved during official U. S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) tests. Most U. S. automakers, and some foreign ones as well, voluntarily agreed to participate in the labeling program beginning with their 1974 models.

But since all models of cars sold in the U. S. must meet federal emissions standards (fuel economy figures are determined during mandatory emissions tests conducted by EPA), the auto club says mileage figures for any vehicle can be found in EPA's mileage guide even if the manufacturer is not participating in the labeling program.

"An important thing to remember about EPA's tests is that they are not actual road tests," said Wm. M. Coffey, AAA Texas Division, General Manager. "and no one -- not even EPA or the auto manufacturer -- will guarantee that drivers will achieve the same results."

The problem seems to be that many auto makers are not explaining EPA's test figures properly in their advertising, says AAA. And many buyers of new cars are misinterpreting their meaning, too.

In fact, the Federal Trade Commission recently issued interim guidelines effective October 15 for the advertising of fuel economy claims. The guides require that:

1. Ads making fuel economy claims must disclose EPA test results for both city and highway cycles, with substantially equal prominence.

2. When a fuel economy claim is made for a car which is available with more than one size engine, transmission type or fuel system, those factors must be disclosed for the car used in the test.

3. When an ad cites mileage figures for a specific car that are not given in the EPA mileage guide, the ad must disclose all optional equipment on the car that is likely to increase fuel economy, as well as the absence of any "commonly used" equipment, such as air conditioning, which is likely to affect fuel economy.

4. Disclosure be given that mileage figures are estimates, and that the mileage an individual driver gets may differ, depending on driving habits, condition of the car and optional equipment.

EPA uses a "dynamometer" for its testing procedures. This is a sophisticated treadmill machine which is driven by the wheels of the car recreating driving on a self - contained "road" rather than a real road for testing procedures.

City driving conditions are reproduced using repeated variations of cruising, acceleration, deceleration and idling. Highway driving is recreated at higher speeds with less pronounced accelerations and decelerations. EPA also determines figures for city / highway driving, based on a mix of 55 per cent city driving conditions and 45 per cent highway driving conditions. However, these figures are not yet available from the federal agency.

These test conditions cannot, of course, duplicate each motorist's particular driving habits, which is perhaps the single most important contributing factor to fuel economy, AAA points out.

A number of other factors influence miles per gallon motorist can expect to achieve with their particular vehicles.

Various options have a marked effect. Air conditioning, for example, can cut into fuel economy, while radial tires can actually increase mileage results. Vehicle weight and engine condition have a bearing on the issue, too.

Kubiak Seeks Approval Of Proposition Five

Rep. Dan Kubiak said Friday he supports all of the proposed Constitution that will be voted on next November 4, but he stressed that approval of the finance article (Proposition Five) is necessary for Texas to remain a major agricultural producer.

"The finance article will reform our property tax system, which today places an unbearable tax burden on agricultural land," Kubiak said. "If this portion of the new Constitution is not approved, we will continue to see farm and ranch land taken out of production because owners cannot clear a profit and pay their property taxes."

Under the present system of ad valorem taxes, there is no uniform standard for appraising property, Kubiak said, and much farm and ranch land is taxed on its real-estate value rather than its economic productivity.

"Tax loads in many rural areas have increased up to 400 percent in the past few years, and the new school finance law is forcing property taxes even higher in those areas," Kubiak said. "Farmers and ranchers simply cannot continue to pay these tax rates and remain in business."

Kubiak said the finance article of the new Constitution requires creation of a uniform tax system in Texas and mandates that agricultural land be taxed under a separate formula based on productivity rather than real estate value.

"The legislature has alredy approved a separate productivity formula for farm and ranch land, and all that is needed now is voter approval of Proposition Five," Kubiak said. "The failure of this proposition would be disastrous to Texas agriculture, and I urge every Texas interested in economical and plentiful food to support this part of the new Constitution."

Lumber Can Go On In Many Patterns

The solid "feel" and "look" of western lumber paneling make it a distinctive wall covering that is copied but never quite duplicated by other materials.

In addition to the flat vertical or horizontal paneling applications, there are a number of variations that add to this versatility.

Tongue-and-groove board paneling with a molded edge offers interesting shadow lines, and rustic effects are possible with channel or board and batten patterns.

LONDON

The bombers of Scotland's clandestine "Tartan Army" barely have managed to ruffle the highland heather since they came on the scene two years ago. But their very existence imbues authorities with unhappy visions of a Scotland rent by the same kind of guerrila warfare that has ravaged Northern Ireland since 1969.

WASHINGTON

If the U. S. economy is to continue in a path of strong recovery this year, it may have to do so without much further help from the home-building industry. Forecasts for the industry, one of the largest and most important in the U. S. economy and one which has helped lead the way out of every post-war recession to date, have been cut sharply.

BISSAU, GUINEA

This tiny West African republic is starting its second year as an independent nation beset by economic problems which it is trying to solve through tough policies. In September 1974, the government of President Luis Cabral took over from Portugal a country which was suffering from low production, a balance of trade deficit and a war economy--caused by fighting between Portugal and Cabral's guerrillas.

KATOWICE, POLAND

Thousands of families scattered throughout the Silesian coal basin--home of Poland's chief export industry--are trying to decide whether to emigrate to West Germany or remain here. "Almost everyone here has some connection with a family in Germany," remarked a mining engineer, discussing the latest Polish-West German negotiation on migration.

PARIS

A truce in the wine war now rocking the European Common Market may depend on the agumen of a jovial Frenchman who is both a successful businessman and a communist. He is Jean-Baptiste Doumeng, 56-year-old farmer and super salesman who once before came to the Common Market's rescue with a successful sales mission to Moscow to unload the European economic community's "butter mountain."

MADRID

Criticism is mounting in Spain against goverment reprisals for urban guerrilla violence which has led to 11 death sentences and some 200 arrests following an anti-terrorist law imposed last month. The law has strained Spain's social fabric, drawing protests from bishops and prominent Spaniards, establishment politicians and illegal opposition parties. It has also tarnished the country's image abroad.

Happening about Town

Have A Soup-er Supper

Nothing warms body and soul better on cold or murky days than a big steaming bowl of homemade soup. Somehow the world takes on a rosier glow as the warm liquid–filled with products of a successful summer garden–does for the inside what fuzzy slippers and an overstuffed easy chair do for the outside.

Extremely nourishing and economical, soup has been a basic food in every country and with every civilization throughout the ages. France has its pot-au-feu, Italy its minestrone, Russia its borscht and China its bird's nest soup. Since time immemorial people have kept the stock pot simmering all day on the back of the kitchen stove.

In France, soup is still the basis of national diet. The word "supper" is derived from the French term "La Soupe," which has been the name of the evening meal in parts of rural France for hundreds of years.

One of the most popular of French soups is bouillabaisse. A variation of this French delight is served at the Holiday Inn in Buena Park, Calif., in which seafoods and seasonings are simmered slowly in a white burgundy wine. Another hearty meal-in-a-bowl served at the Buena Park inn is a fascinating mixture of meat, vegetables and grain called beef barley soup.

SOUP-ER SUPPER–Warm up a cold, wintry day with a steaming bowl of homemade soup filled with juicy chunks of seafood and mushrooms simmered in wine.

Beef Barley Soup

6 qts. beef bone stock
½ lb. (1½ cups) pearl barley
1 10-oz. pkg. frozen spinach
1 16-oz. can tomato wedges
2 10-oz. pkgs. frozen mixed vegetables
¾ cup chopped onion
3 stalks celery, chopped
½ large green pepper, chopped
½ lb. cabbage, shredded
1 bay leaf
1 cup burgundy wine
½ cup beef soup base
3 tsps. garlic powder
½ tsp. white pepper
½ lb. boneless stew beef, diced

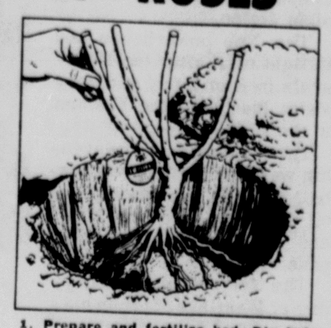
Add barley to soup stock; cook 30 minutes. Add all other ingredients and cook until barley is tender. (Freezes well.)

Bouillabaisse

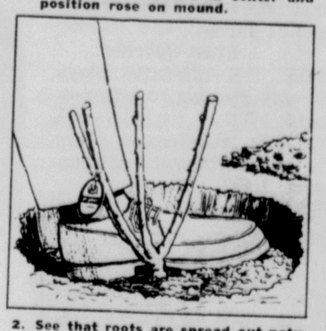
1 lb. halibut, cut in 2-inch cubes
1 #2½ can stewed tomatoes
1 4-oz. can tomato puree
2 large carrots, diced
1 large onion, diced
2 stalks celery, diced
3 cloves garlic, minced
1 tbsp. whole Italian seasonings
2 cups white burgundy wine
1 cup water
2 bay leaves
3 tbsp. chopped parsley
1 lb. fresh mushrooms, chopped
1 large dungeness crab, cut in chunks
8 large shrimp
8 cherry stone (large) clams
8 little neck (small) clams
8 mussels, well scrubbed

Combine halibut and next 12 ingredients in large Dutch oven; simmer 30 minutes. Place clam shells in warm oven about 5 minutes to open. Add remaining seafoods and simmer 20 minutes. Serves 6. Scallops may be substituted for mussels.

THE FALL PLANTING OF ROSES

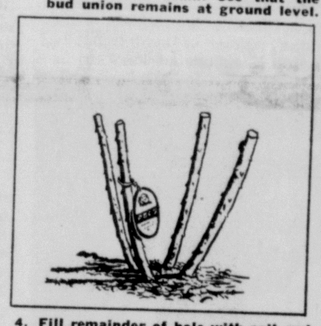


1. Prepare and fertilize bed. Dig hole 15" to 18" wide and as deep. Add quart of peat moss mixed with ½ cup of fertilizer. Mix well with soil. Form a mound in center and position rose on mound.



2. See that roots are spread out naturally and that bud union (swelling at base of stems) is level with ground. Scatter several inches loose soil over roots and firm well with foot.

3. Fill remainder of hole with water and allow to drain. See that the bud union remains at ground level.



4. Fill remainder of hole with soil and tamp. The plant is now ready for the mound of soil which will protect it against rapid freezing and thawing during the winter.

5. Mound soil around and over plant to a height of 12". Remove protective mound in the spring after growth starts.

All-America Rose Selections, noted as a highly experienced group of hybridizers, growers and introducers of fine roses, have long urged gardeners throughout the temperate regions to plant roses in the fall. From their own 32 years of growing experience and their unequaled testing facilities spread throughout the country, the members of AARS long ago learned the advantages of fall planting in all but the more northern areas of the United States.

Although rose plants make little or no growth in the fall after they are planted, the ground settles firmly about the roots during the winter and the plants are established and ready to start active growth with the event of warm weather, long before most spring roses are purchased and planted.

Planting roses in the fall is a very easy procedure. Simply carry out the few fundamental practices shown in the accompanying diagrams.

After you have your location chosen and the ground prepared, get your roses, prune all canes back to 18 inches, trim any damaged roots and plant as soon as possible. For roses that will give satisfactory and outstanding performance, choose the All-America award winners, all of which bear the emblem on a green and white identification tag attached to each plant.

Disease Protection Urged

Texas is currently taking part in the nation-wide observance of Immunization Action Month centering attention on protecting the preschool child from threats of rubella, measles, polio, diptheria, whooping cough, mumps and tetanus.

Milam County leads surrounding counties with over 95% of its children immunized; but, Texas authorities say that all places are still vulnerable to local epidemics.

Percentages of younger children not immunized are still low enough to allow the quick spread of these diseases once they get started.

Local health officials report that the percentage of children protected has increased in the past few years due to the compulsory school immunization law passed by the Texas Legislature.

Officials state that one reason Milam County has a high percentage of protected children is the large number of school nurses in our county who keep records on the children's immunization history.

Pre - school children should start immunization shots for diptheria/tetanus and polio at 2 months with a series of 3 shots 2 months apart. One year after the third shot, the child should receive a booster shot and again before he enters school.

Measles, rubella and mumps shots should be administered when the child is one year old.

Adults who have kept up with their deptheria/tetanus boosters need another booster every 10 years. Those who have never taken such shots need to take a series of two shots given one month apart, a booster one year after the second shot and a booster every 10 years after that.

Polio immunization shots are not given after the age of 19 unless an epidemic breaks out. Currently the state is requesting travelers into Mexico to receive polio vaccines because of increasing number of polio cases in Mexico.

After the age of 12, measles and rubella shots are not given unless under a doctors prescription.

In the case of rubella a doctor must make sure a female is not pregnant before immunization is given. The shot may create a light case of the disease which might be harmful to the embryo.

The measles shot is known to often make adults slightly ill so they are not given by the county clinic except by a doctor's request. This is true for mumps immunization also.

Parents are urged to protect their children and themselves. The Milam County Health Department holds immunization clinics on Mondays from 1-4:30 and Tuesdays from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at their office at 209 S. Houston.

Yoemen Whallop Westlake Chaps, 28-3

Scoring once in the first quarter, twice in the second, and again in the fourth, the Cameron Yoemen continued their dominance in District 23-AA football, whalloping the Austin Westlake Chaparals 28-3 in Friday night action.

The Yoe powerhouse had to fight back after the Chaparals took an early and very short lead over the Yoemen in the first quarter.

The remainder of the evening was typical Cameron football with the Yoe Fence giving up only 141 yards rushing and stifiling the Chaparals passing attack to 37 yards.

The Yoe offense had a hayday at Westlake Stadium bleeding the Chaps defense of 233 yards of home turf and bombarding the secondary that allowed one touchdown and 51 yards.

First Quarter

YOE: 8 offensive plays, 97 yds rushing, 0 yds passing, 1 TD.

CHAPS: 20 offensive plays, 72 yds rushing, 34 yds passing; 1 FG

The Chaparals elected to take the opening kick off and on their first offensive series the Chaps drove to the Yoe 2-yard line and Jimmy Kohutek twartered off a sky-high Chaparal offensive attack.

On the second offensive position the Chaparals again exploded with a confidence took the pigskin to the Yoe 8 and on a fourth down situation the Chaparal kicking expert John Chumney was called to duty. What ended up being a 25-yard attempt sailed through the blue-white uprights, giving the Chaparals a short-lived 3-0 lead.

The lead lasted only as long as it took Mark Wetzel, Chaparal kicker, to boot the ball to Jafus White who zipped through the Chaparals defense like a hot knife through butter.

Jafus White churned 81 yards for the first Yoe TD that was followed by Mondrik's extra point for 1, giving the Yoemen a 7-3 lead that was never to be taken away.

Second Quarter

YOE: 19 offensive plays, 128 yds rushing, 11 yds passing; 2 TDs.

CHAPS: 10 offensive plays, 21 yds rushing, 3 yds passing.

The Yoe Fence gave no ground to the rebounding Chaparals who were fighting for their lives in Dstrict 23-AA, already falling in the district opener to Caldwell.

The Yoe offensive machine agains working with percision of a swiss-made watch, dipped into pay dirt with 7:49 remaining in the first half.

Five plays and 55 yards of turf was the formula for the second Yoe TD with Michael White, QB, follcwing Ronnie Bennett into the Chaparal end zone, increasing the Yoe lead. Joey Mondrik had the honors on the PAT which vaulted the Yoemen 14-3.

David Rosemon picked off an under-thrown Paul Huntsberger pass and returned the ball to the Chap 29-yard line. Four plays later and a cloud of dust Jafus White crashed through the Chap defense 11 yards adding another insurance policy for the Yoemen. With the clock reading 5:10 Mondrik put the pigskin into orbit, passing through the uprights which increased the ownership, 21-3.

Half-Time

As the announcer for the Chaparal band said, it was a clear-cut victory during half time. It was true the Yoe band, under the direction of Jerry Bartley, won the half time show.

Third Quarter

YOE: 13 offensive plays, 57 yds rushing, 6 yds passing

CHAPS: 8 offensive plays, 23 yds rushing, 0 yds passing

Neither ball team was able to advance the score in the third quarter with both teams showing little offensive stamina.

Lacking with any kind of offensive excitement the quarter drew near to the sounding of the fourth quarter when the Yoe offense showed sparks of new life.

Fourth Quarter

YOE: 13 off. plays, 40 yds. rushing, 45 yds passing, 1 TD

CHAPS: 16 off. plays, 29 yds. rushing, 0 yds. passing,

On the opeing play of the closing quarter, Michael White connected with Kenneth Scott on a 45-yard pass play that ended the 80 yard drive that had started late in the third quarter.

Kenneth Scott dipped his shoulders and hustled and was into the end zone untouched. Ysidoro Tamez added one giving the Yoemen another decisive victory, 28-3.

WHO'S NEXT? It will be homecoming for the Yoemen in next Friday night grid action when Caldwel will make their bid for the district upset.

Sports Roundup

Tigers Embarrass Lions

The Rockdale Tigers remain undefeated in district competition embarrassing the Lockhart Lions, 68-0. The Tigers rolled over the Lions, punishing them to a 28-0 first quarter lead. Don Westley 30 yard run, Martin Stroman 14 yard end around and Jimmy Petty on a 42 yard pass from Stroman started the scoring for the Tigers. Insell Richard 32 yard run, Fred Grayson on a 13 yard run highlighted first half scoring. The Tigers rolled up over 453 yards rushing and 134 yards from the air.

Leander Over Cougars

The Leander Lions traveled to Rosebud-Lott and defeated the Cougars 20-7 for their first district win. This was the first district loss for the Cougars who are now 0-1-1 while the Lions are 1-1-0. The Rosebud-Lott Cougars struggled out more total yardage than the Lions and had more first downs, 14-9. The Cougars led throughout the evening until the fourth quarter when the relinquished their 7-6 lead. The Cougar game plan went into shambles coulpled with defensive errors, the Cougars baulked on their home turf.

Hornets Shut Out Eagles

The Caldwell Hornets enjoyed shutting out the Hearne Eagles in a district 23AA rival, 16-0. Glen Hughes went 54 yards to open the Hornet scoring mid-way through the first quarter and the PAT was good for a 7-0 lead. Wayne Bethney was called to duty on a 28-yard field goal that sailed through the uprights. Tommy Garbs connected with Harold Jackson on a 27 yard pass play and touchdown. The Caldwell Hornets are undefeated in district action while the Eagles turn in a 0-2 district record. A clash of the undefeated will unfold at Yoe Field when the Hornets take on the Cameron Yoemen in Friday night grid action..

Ducks Nip Tigers 7-0

The Big Red of the Belton Tigers were again humiliated on their home-turf, this time giving ground to the Taylor Ducks 7-0. The Tigers have been crippeled this season, trying to find a resting stop, in order to recoupe their forces. Bruce Turner telotyped! a 73 yard pass to Traz Buzan with 3:18 remaining in what looked to be a sister-kisser. The frustrated Tiger defense broke down and Buzan went gleaming down the 73 yards untouched to score the big district win. No one wearing red can believe it's already a 2-3-1 season after winning the district title last year.

Chaparals Defeat Yoe Freshmen

The Yoe High freshmen were downed in their second district game Thursday night when the Chaparals of Austin scored in the first second, and fourth quarters to overpower the Yoe freshmen 20-6.

The Yoe freshmen dropped their season record to 3-2, scoring three-in-a-row before district play began. Last week the freshmen fell to Leander in the district opener.

Feeling the absence of regulars, Ronald Cobb, the usual starting quarterback, and Kenneth Price, wingback, another starter in the backfield. The Yoe offense was able to score only in the final stanza.

The Yoe offense pushed out 158 yards of total offense against the Chaparal defense. The Yoe defense gave the Chaparals 223 of their home turf.

In the opening quarter the Chaparals drove the pigskin 65 yards in eleven plays to give them their first touchdown with 5:45 remaining. The extra point attempt failed.

The second Chap score came in the second quarter with 6:27 showing on the clock. It was on a pass play that took the Chaps into the Yoe end zone giving them a 12-0 lead. The PAT for two was good and the Chaparals took a 14-x half time lead over the Yoemen.

The Yoemen finally broke through the Chaparal defense that was able to hold the freshmen to a near three quarter standstill. The Yoe touchdown came on a 51 yard end sweep on a second down play. Edward Steamer dashed out right end to scramble into the untouched Chap endzone.

Job Creation Campaign Has Exceeded Goals

Governor Dolph Briscoe's Job Creation Campaign has exceeded its goals a second time by identifying 18,000 jobs in only four months, according to Reagan Brown, chairman of the campaign.

The Texas First goals set at 4,000 when the program was announced in May were revised upward to 15,000 one month later.

The 18,000 jobs were identified through response from top Texas industrialist to letters sent out by Governor Briscoe offering the state's resources in helping them with economic expansion.

"There seems to be no limit to the number of vacant jobs in Texas," Brown said. "Rather than constantly revising our goals, we're going to see just how far we can go matching Texans with these jobs."

On the drawing boards now are 114 Industrial Start-Up Training programs being designed to meet employers' specific requirements for workers. The Texas Industrial Commission, Texas Education Agency, and local learning institutions are cooperating on this project.

"This training will refine the skills of trained workers and guarantee employment for the many unskilled and unemployed Texans sincerely searching for a way to support themselves and their families," Brown said.

Positions and training programs not immediately filled from existing job banks maintained by local prime sponsors of manpower programs and the Texas Employment Commission are posted in local TEC offices across the state.

The Industrial Commission is also working with 34 industries which want to establish branch plants in the state.

Other agencies comprising the Governor's Job Creation Campaign phase of Texas First are the Texas Department of Community Affairs and Governor's Division of Planning Coordination.

FB Head Urges Safe Referendum

WACO

Texas Farm Bureau President Carrol Chaloupka has written both Texas Senators urging them to support the preservation of "safeguards for a valid referendum" in the Beef Research and Consumer Information Act approved recently by the U.S. House of Representatives.

The measure, passed in the House as H.R. 7656, provides for a checkoff for research and promotion programs for beef.

The House-passed bill includes provisions for notifying "all known cattle producers" of the referendum and the time and place of balloting to permit qualified producers to register with the Agriculture Stabilization Service in person or by mail to vote in the referendum "during a period ending not less than ten days prior to the date of the referendum."

It also provides that in order for the program to be implemented, at least 50 percent of the registered voters must vote and that it must be approved by not less than two-thirds of the producers voting in the referendum.

Chaloupka pointed out that without such safeguard, "a very small minority of cattlemen could saddle the entire cattle industry with a check-off program which a majority of producers may or may not want."

Meat Processing Seminar Slated

With the rapid change taking place in the livestock and meat business, meat processors must continue to be concerned with providing an acceptable product for consumers. To help them in this effort, the Texas Agricultural Extension Service in conjunction with the Department of Animal Science at Texas A&M University, is offering a special seminar in meat processing.

The seminar, keyed to meat processors throughout the state, will be held Oct. 3-4 at the Aggieland Inn in College Station, announces Woodrow W. Bailey, livestock and meat specialist with the Extension Service.

Highlighted will be such subjects as new methods of producing more tender meat, improved methods of holding fresh meat longer, use of mechanically boned meat, new packing methods, and the latest material for improving the appearance of finished meat products.

Regulation Urged For Propane Prices

Authority to allocate and establish reasonable prices for propane is being urged by the Federal Energy Administration, it was reported today by Delbert M. Fowler of Dallas, FEA regional administrator.

"We are expecting very serious shortages this winter, as industries with interruptable natural gas service enter the propane market to obtain fuel as a natural gas substitute," Fowler explained.

Buckholts Youths Win At Fair

A number of Buckholts FFA and 4-H members entered animals in the Heart O 'Texas Fair at Waco, with members winning trophies and ribbons.

Monte Williams of the FFA was first in his class, and Reserve Champion of the Hereford heifer show. Michael Allison also placed 7th with his Brown Swiss heifer.

FFA members Dudley Haisler and Pam Haisler placed 6th and 7th with their Polled Hereford heifers.

Buckholts 4-H members Sheryl and Lisa Rubac placed third with their heifers in the Charolais division. Debbie Glaser also showed two steers, a market hog, and two breeding gilts. She is also a member of the Buckholts 4-H Club.

Deadline Nears For Tax Reports

Comptroller Bob Bullock has reminded the 230,000 retail businesses in Texas that October 31 is the deadline for filing their quarterly sales tax returns.

"It's only a few days away and any return filed after that time means nothing but problems for us and for the taxpayer." Bullock said, noting that tardy reports can carry financial penalties.

Reports due October 31 cover the July-August-September quarter. Forms for the reports were sent to all sales tax permit holders by Bullock's office in September.

Guard Sets Muster

Autumn air and football season are sure signs that reunions are being planned to bring old friends back together--for a short time anyway.

And one of the largest reunions being planned this fall has hopes of drawing all former Texas Guardsmen back to the Texas Guard headquarters, Camp Mabry in northwest Austin on November 1 to reminisce over a plate of Texas-style barbecue.

The Texas Guard's First Annual Muster is a reunion of one of the largest groups of graduates in the state, all retired members of the Texas National Guard.
